Katikies, Mykonos

Recalling the go-slow, get-lost spirit of pre-Fifties Cyclades that second-wave bohemians fell in love with, Katikies Mykonos is the younger sister to the famed Santorini address of the same name. The amphitheatrical layout conceals 35 rooms with private terraces and plunge pools within a labyrinth of alleyways, creating illusions of space, solitude – and that little thrill of discovery. There is a surprise at every turn: a spa, a boutique (with a judicious edit of Vitamin A bikinis) and two azure infinity pools. The shenanigans at Nammos and Scorpios are within 15 minutes toe-dipping and fleeing distance but unlike the island's bigger, brasher retreats, Katikies is a place to hole up, not be seen in – by Myconian standards at least.
